

Pr. 2B Woo Ho Tung Vanessa
I like the Junior Hall. The hall is just like that of a grand hotel.

Pr. 1A Cheng Wai Ching
I like the Multi-purpose Area because from here I can see what DGS is like. I want to see something different.

Pr. 4B Andrea Chan
The art garden is my favourite "secret corner" and I enjoy reading books, writing stories, chatting with my friends and daydreaming there.

Pr. 5B Allison Cheng
I think the indoor swimming pool at school is the perfect one I have ever seen. The temperature of the pool is just right. When I plunge into the pool, I won't feel cold. In autumn, I don't have to swim with the insects and leaves unlike at any community swimming pool.

COMING HOME...

Pr. 3C Andrea Chan
I especially like playing on the monkey bars because I feel like a monkey as I swing to and fro on the bars. The disk challenge is new to me as I had never tried this before, and I think playing on it is fun!

Amanda Hwang 6W

It is a place where you would expect to hear the furious scratch of pen on paper, the pitter-patter of students prodding their calculators and a heated discussion on molecular genetics. Yet, it is also a place where dolls still rule, where laughter is contagious and where stickers find a home inside schedule books. It is my favourite place in DGS – my classroom. Our new classroom is not only spacious and comfortable, but also equipped with modern facilities that aid teaching and learning. Our classroom is a treasure trove of happy memories of our last year in DGS. It also stands as an epitome of the mutual support between schoolmates, and our love towards our school.

Pr. 5C Fion Tse
An enjoyable area is the gymnasium; its deep blue walls evoke a strong sense of home, while the clear glass windows give the viewer an excellent view of nearby buildings and pedestrians.

Pr. 6C Jamie Chan
Every day the courtyard is filled with people. In the morning, students rush to class, and during our break, it is a gathering place for laughter and joy. In between classes, it plays an important role in connecting us to different parts of the school. After school, parents crowd around with gleaming faces in this magnificent, spacious, awesome courtyard for their daughters to be dismissed.

Pr. 5A Aimee Wong
This new library is much bigger than the ones in Tseung Kwan O and the old Jordan Road campus. I like the design of the Reading Cottage and I am almost tempted to eat the decorations that look like food!

Jennifer Ho 3Y

Gibbins Place is a special plaza dedicated in memory of our past Headmistress-- Miss Gibbins, who prevented the school from looting during wartime and protected it during battle. This plaza is a symbol of the glory of the school as the magnificent glass shelf proudly houses the past and present achievements of the Diocesans, up above us all. Gibbins Place is the center of the DGS community where the symbol of DGS stands tall. I am so grateful for the grand institute that stands tall today, signifying the glory of the Diocesan spirit.

Vanessa Ma 2U

As I raise my head in the DGS Plaza to accommodate the blue sky pouring in, I smile, the exhilaration of being back generating a tingling feeling of excitement, satisfaction and incomparable mirth. My eyes roam across the new premises, feasting on the blinding tiles and sparkling glass that line the exterior of stately buildings, glinting in the sun, standing in renewed reverence of the DGS spirit, its flames kindling in our hearts, ignited since 1860.

Hillary Leung 4X

As I entered the new Jordan Road campus for the first time, I was awestruck by the huge blue façade with our School Name and Crest, emblazoned in golden lettering above me. The magnificence of it struck me completely. The façade resembles the one at the old DGS campus one, which was right above the old School Hall, reminding me of the good old days spent there. From it, I knew that the DGS legacy lives on as we continue to paint beautiful memories of this wonderful place.

